

Miss M. Peacock, sister of Edward Parker Peacock, died, not in Newport, but Lake-wood, N. J., in 1888. She had been failing in health for some time and her physician ordered her his business and good judgment. In fact, he laid the foundation of a code of practice in the controller's office which is most equitable and fair to the banks and at the same time sufficiently restrictive for the safety of the public.

His writings upon financial subjects are sound, instructive, and original in their statements, and are accepted as authority in this country and in Europe. He was a man of the strictest and most unvarying integrity in public and private business and in all his relations to others. He was dignified, courteous, thoughtful, and thoughtful, and courteous to all, and unflinching and loyal in his friendship. By his death we lose a distinguished

The furniture in the Perceval was valued at $25,000. It was insured for $20,000, $10,000 of which was in the German-American Company. The building was insured for $30,000. It was estimated that the building had been damaged $40,000 by fire and water. Most of the furniture is ruined, and that with what the owners will lose will bring the loss up to $100,000.

George House of Florida, N. Y., came to town on Thursday to buy some clothing for his wife and children. When he went to bed that night in the house of his brother-in-law, Samuel McWhorter, at East Lake, he was awakened by a man who started early on. He was dead when found in the morning. Mr. House was 25 years old, and leaves a widow and one child.

John T. Hinzelman, counsel for the United Clink and Suit Cutters Association, applied to Justice Burke of the Tomlinson federal court for a writ of habeas corpus for arrest for Walking Inmate, Don W. Hurley. It is claimed that in April, 1917, Hurley was arrested by the police of New York City on the charge of being a member of the Joseph Bonanno, Bonanno association, that he received only $700 from Burke, but at the same time he was paid $1000 by Burke. The federal court was asked to issue a writ of habeas corpus. A warrant was refused. The Justice suggested that the President of the association make affidavit that the money was paid to Burke for the purpose of giving him a job. The Justice then gave to Mr.
